MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR

Mr. J. H. Davis, Jr., Secretary to the Governor, appeared at the Bar of the House, and, being duly announced, presented the following message from the Governor, which was read to the House, as follows:

Executive Office,
Austin, Texas, March 3, 1933.

To the Texas Legislature:

Acting upon the request of various State banks and trust companies, and other financial institutions, including the Federal Reserve Bank, and with the approval of the State Banking Commissioner, I, on yesterday, issued my official proclamation, proclaiming a financial moratorium in the State of Texas from date until and including March 7, 1933, and in said proclamation I declared that all State and National banks and State banks and trust companies, as well as private banks and other financial institutions, be prohibited and enjoined from paying to any depositor or creditor upon any account of deposit liability any amount of money during the period of time covered by said proclamation, and that all of said institutions should, during said time, remain closed.

I fully appreciate, and nobody understands better than I do, that this was an unusual proceeding. I would not have assumed the responsibility of such action had I not believed and known that the Nation faces the greatest financial difficulty that ever afflicted the American people, and such being the case, these are times that try men's souls, and demand prompt and courageous action to deal with the problems that daily arise in official circles. Our great mass of people have deposited their meager earnings in the different institutions of the State, and those that are daily engaged in the livelihood of an existence have but little time or opportunity to study or know the financial condition. With a trusting faith in the Government and Government institutions, the people have deposited their all with the assurance and feeling that their interest would be at all times protected by those in official authority.

In the last fourteen days more than fourteen States have taken various forms of similar official action taken by me on yesterday. On yesterday there were seven States in different parts of the Union that took practically the same course taken by me, as Governor of Texas.

The action was taken to protect the depositing public, including the great masses of our wage earners and small depositors, from being made the victim of a vicious discrimination. Had I not taken such action, with the feeling of unrest and panic sweeping over the country, the large depositor and well-informed business man, by private information, would have the opportunity to go quietly to the bank, withdraw his deposit in full, and, in turn, bring destruction to the bank that would cause its doors to be closed, and, in the end, ultimate loss to the great masses of the people. Such a result, of course, would destroy all business and all values, and bring about an unthinkable and intolerable condition.

Impelled by these motives, I felt it my duty to take prompt action in the manner above-described in order to compose the situation until I could submit these matters to your mature and cool deliberation for prompt action and decision. I trust that you will appreciate the gravity of the situation, and use all possible dispatch in passing such legislation as will protect the interest of everybody concerned having connection directly or indirectly with our financial institutions.

On last night I called together various Members of the House and Senate, and other citizens, for an informal meeting, and after going over the entire situation fully, I was authorized to appoint a committee of three Members of the House and two Members of the Senate to draft a bill to be submitted to you as a basis for discussion of necessary legislation. It is my opinion that this bill, though vesting extraordinary powers, would be justified by the needs and demands of the present grave situation.

Assuring you of my continued wish to co-operate fully with you, I submit this message with continued esteem.

Respectfully submitted,
MIRIAM A. FERGUSON,
 Governor of Texas.

HOUSE BILL ON FIRST READING

The following House bill introduced today, by unanimous consent, was laid before the House, read first time, and referred to the appropriate committee, as follows:

By Mr. Kayton, Mr. Patterson, and Mr. McGregor:

H. B. No. 773, A bill to be entitled "An Act providing that the Banking Commissioner of the State of Texas, with the approval of the Governor of Texas, from and after the passage of this Act, be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered to declare financial moratoria for, and invoke a uniform limitation withdrawal, co-extensive with the boundaries of the State, of deposits from all State banks, National banks, State banks and trust companies, trust companies, private banks, building and loan associations, and all other banking and financial institutions in the State of Texas, or both such moratoria and limitations of withdrawal of deposits, and to promulgate any and all orders and decrees necessary to enforce such powers herein delegated; providing penalties for violations; and declaring an emergency."

Referred to Committee on Banks and Banking.

BILL RE-REFERRED

Mr. Mathis moved that House Bill No. 773 be withdrawn from the Committee on Banks and Banking and referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. Anderson of Bexar raised a point of order on further considera-
